Plymouth Methodist Church
£450,000

The Methodist Central Hall in Plymouth underwent significant interior and exterior works including a completely redesigned entrance lobby.

The redesign is one of many over the church's 200 year history as a pillar of the local church community.

The project, which was largely funded by Trusts, charitable organisations and donations, took just over 6 months to complete.

Internally, the choir area is now raised and a kitchenette and office space has been incorporated into the undercroft and a new organ screen and large projection screen have also been added, supported by arched steel beams.

Externally, the entrance consists of a new stunning aluminium framed glazing system complete with a copper parapet roof and finished with a bespoke 3 metre crucifix.
